

Green Policy

Agren Blando Court Reporting & Video is "going green"! We are proud to be a certified GenGreen® company. As the first court reporting firm in Colorado to go green, we understand that our work has an impact on our local and regional environments in which we operate.

Agren Blando believes in being a good steward of the environment and is committed to utilizing sustainable business practices and applying the best green solutions within our company. It is our intention to operate our business in an as environmentally friendly way as possible.

Reducing waste, conserving energy and recycling are just a few of the ways we will strive to ensure the imprint of Agren Blando is reduced starting today, and continues into the future.

We seek to be an industry leader in earth-friendly practices within our offices by consistently:

- Recycling

- Reducing waste
- Reusing office supplies
- Recycling electronic waste
- Avoiding wasteful printing
- Using rechargeable batteries
- Recycling toner cartridges
- Reusing materials at every opportunity
- Using recycled paper wherever possible
- Considering environmental impacts in our purchasing
- Using eco-friendly water coolers
- Turning off lights and computers when they are not in use
- Use electronic documents instead of paper whenever possible
- Striving to work with partner organizations that share green values
- Offering an employee incentive program to use public transportation

Agren Blando is Taking
Court Reporting Green - 11/16/09 Press Release

two things man doesn't want to take lightly, it's the environment and the black and white of the law. Agren Blando Court Reporting and Video, Inc. is proud to say it's the first court reporting service in Colorado to take black and white to green with their new environmentally friendly business practices.

The company, which has been doing business in Colorado for 48 years, recently revamped its business practices to become as environmentally conscious as possible.

"We are proud to be a certified GenGreen company," says President Michael Pace. "As the first court reporting firm in Colorado to go green we understand that our work has an impact on our local and regional environments in which we operate."

GenGreen is an organization dedicated to helping businesses minimize the negative effects their business practices have on the environment. Certification is determined through a three tiered testing process that gauges a business's environmentally and socially conscious behavior based on environmental leadership, resource conservation, human capital, purchasing decisions and daily operations.

As part of their environmentally friendly facelift, Agren Blando is focusing on reducing waste, reusing office supplies and offering an employee incentive program to encourage employees to use public transportation to get to and from work as often as possible. The company is also among the first to utilize a secure online repository and provide digital transcripts as often as possible to save paper.

As studies show that American offices throw away enough paper each year to build a 12 foot wall from LA to NYC, this is a huge step forward in the conservation of our precious natural resources.

"Agren Blando has developed a reputation for accuracy, innovation, and dedicated service," says Pace.

Now the company is striving to add environmentally friendly to that list.

Agren Blando

specializes in providing print and video court reporting services for depositions, trials and litigation services nationwide. The company recently partnered with Attorneys Service Center, Denver's Freelance Firm of the year.

"We are proud to be large enough to handle the most challenging litigation demands, yet staffed adequately to give personal and careful attention to each individual client," states Pace.
